Member Overview

The Big Creek Lodge is a working Guest Ranch in the heart of the Chilcotin, a remote and untouched area near the Coast Mountain of British Columbia, Canada. The Ranch lies south of the small community of Big Creek, which has a population of approximately 50 people. In all other directions the land is uninhabited and remains as untouched as it was thousands of years ago.

Rooms and Cabins have a Canada selected "Four Star" Rating, indicating this property offers outstanding facilities and service. The Cabins are nestled among the trees bordering Big Creek, giving you a feeling of remoteness, that you've always imagined and a comfort you will be sure to miss after your stay. Guests enjoy the fresh, unpolluted air, the absolute peace and quiet. The area is full of wildlife, and depending on the season, guest may see bear, deer, moose, eagles, wolves and countless species of birds - from the charming hummingbird to the impressive golden eagle.
